OLD DOMINION FOUNDATION was established in 1941 by Paul Mellon, of Upperville, Virginia. Areas in which the Foundation has been particularly interested include the humanities and liberal education, the arts, mental health, and conservation. A special program has been maintained in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

This report describes briefly some of the larger appropriations made during 1968 and contains a complete list of appropriations made and grants paid during that year, together with relevant financial statements.

Since its establishment in 1941, the Foundation has appropriated $86,044,396 for philanthropic purposes. Grants paid by the Foundation during 1968 amounted to $4,700,278.

Education

The largest appropriation made during the course of the year was a grant of $500,000 to the American Council of Learned Societies for the endowment fund which the Council is establishing to sustain its varied activities in support of the humanities.

The Foundation made several grants in support of library development in liberal arts institutions. These included a grant of $250,000 to Hampshire College, a new liberal arts college in Amherst, Massachusetts, toward the cost of construction of its library; $150,000 to Harvard University for the enlargement of Widener Library, which houses the principal research collections of Harvard College in the humanities and social sciences; and $150,000 to Princeton University for the acquisition by its library of materials in European and British history.

The Foundation gave $55,000 to the University of Oxford, in England, for an experimental program to determine the feasibility of preparing a union catalogue of all books published prior to 1801 in the collections of the British Museum and the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. The project will also explore generally the usefulness of computer technology in solving bibliographical problems.

A grant of $150,000 was made to the University of Pennsylvania for the enlargement of the University Museum to provide space needed for its noted collections and research and training programs in archaeology and anthropology. A grant of the same amount went to the National Academy of Sciences for the completion of its auditorium in Washington, D.C., supplementing an earlier grant made by the Foundation to the Academy for that purpose.

The Foundation appropriated $67,500 to the National Endowment for the Humanities for the use of Educational Broadcasting Corporation, which operates New York City's educational television station, WNDT (Channel 13), for the production of "Critique," a program that presents discussions and analyses of current activities in the arts and humanities, including drama, poetry, film, music and other art forms.

Grants of $50,000 or more were made to the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation toward the support of its First Year Graduate Fellowship Program; to the American Institute of Indian Affairs for graduate fellowships for study in India; to Vanderbilt University for strengthening its department of philosophy; to Marlboro College toward cost of a new building to be used for plays, concerts, films, and lectures; and to the New York College Bound Corporation and to Union Settlement Association in support of programs that assist young people of deprived backgrounds to complete high school and go on to higher education.

The Arts

During 1968 the Foundation made a grant of $150,000 to The Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York toward its endowment campaign for the support of the New York Philharmonic. A grant of $75,000, payable over three years, was made to the Business Committee for the Arts in aid of its program to increase support of the arts on the part of business and industry. The Foundation also continued to provide assistance to a number of programs in the visual and performing arts to which it has contributed in the past.

The Paul Mellon Foundation for British Art, which was established several years ago to advance knowledge of British painting, sculpture, and graphic arts, received $145,476 for the continuation of its program of research and publication. During 1968 the Paul Mellon Foundation published two volumes in its series, "Studies of British Art": Joseph Wright of Derby by Benedict Nicholson, and An Italian Sketchbook, by Richard Wilson.

Mental Health

The Foundation made a grant of $100,000 to the Academy of Religion and Mental Health in general support of its program of promoting understanding and working relationships between representatives of religion and of psychiatry, involving multiprofessional and multifaith approaches to problems of health, social problems, and religious education.

The Foundation also made payments under earlier commitments to The Anna Freud Foundation for the training of child therapists at The Hampstead Child-Therapy Course and Clinic, London, England, and to The Menninger Foundation for the training program of its Division of Religion and Psychiatry.

Conservation

The Foundation contributed $250,000 to the New York Botanical Garden for the development of programs of research and public education in ecology and environmental conservation, and a like amount to the New York Zoological Society for the expansion of its exhibits and educational programs.

A three-year continuing support grant of $225,000 was made to The Conservation Foundation, of which Old Dominion Foundation has been a principal supporter since the establishment of The Conservation Foundation twenty years ago. The Foundation also provided continuing support of $60,000 to Wave Hill, Inc., in New York City, for its Environmental Science Center, which is concerned with both teacher training and educational programs for city children relating to the environment.

Grants of $100,000 to World Wildlife Fund and of $75,000 to Philadelphia Conservationists were made for the acquisition of coastal wetlands on the eastern seaboard for preservation as natural areas. Yale University received $50,000 for the acquisition of a shore area near the University for the establishment of a field station for biological and ecological studies.

Commonwealth of Virginia

Grants of $165,000 appropriated during 1968 under the Foundation's program in the Commonwealth of Virginia included $40,000 to the Central Virginia Educational Television Corporation for the production of a program on "The Negro in American History," $40,000 to the Children's Home Society of Virginia for a training program and intern scholarships, $25,000 to the Richmond Symphony toward its endowment fund, and $20,000 to Saint Paul's College for the development of an educational program in the use of computers.
